My darling Ethel

Still no letters from you, but please goodness I will hear to-night. Hear the Dublin affair is dying down, so hope that by this all is well, I do hope my dear one you and the kids have been out of harm's way. Poor girl I suppose you are worrying about hearing from me as I expect my letters are also held up, however dearest I am in the pink. I'm glad to say. The Army Comm^d. sent congratulations to our Brigade for their gallant conduct, and the Div. Gen^l. sent a message saying he was "proud of their behaviour". So we feel somewhat bucked! You should hear our fellows' opinions on the Dublin show. I hope they make the butes pay for it. You will have seen by the papers about the gas etc. When next we meet

I will tell you something of it.
If it is possible I will all being well write you later on to-day my darling, this is just a few extra lines. Hope you are keeping you pecker up old girl.
Must dry up now my dear one, so with fondest love kisses to you dear self & the kids, and may God bless and keep you all safe & sound.

Ever your loving
Tommy
